

Phase 2: Lead with the Guide

Do not lead with the tool; lead with the self-help guide. A guide is zero-risk to a consumer.

- Distribute the guide as a completely free, beautifully formatted PDF or an easy-to-read webpage.
- At the end of every manual step in the guide, add a callout: "Doing this manually takes about 5 minutes. If you want to do this instantly across your whole system, you can use our automated, verified script here." Let the user choose manual control first; it builds immense credibility.

③ Mobilize the digital 'neighborhood watch'

Phase 3: Seed Power User Hubs

Go to the spaces where unmanaged PC users, independent contractors, and tech-savvy family "IT support heroes" hang out.

- Target Platforms: Reddit communities (like `r/Windows11` , `r/sysadmin` for personal labs, or `r/security`), independent tech forums (BleepingComputer, ElevenForum), and alternative privacy networks.
- The Pitch: Do not say "Download my tool." Say: "I built a completely free, open-source guide and helper script to help everyday Home and Pro users lock down Windows 11 without enterprise software. I'd love for this community to audit the script, tell me what you think, and use it to protect your families"

✱ Sharing "Consolidating files across devices to broken ideapad - Claude"

Type @ to ask about a tab

Flash ▾

